As to claim 21, the claim is uninterpretable, the claim recites obtaining the fusion protein by the process of claim 14 and releasing insulin therefrom, however, the fusion protein of claim 14 is not directed to an insulin fusion protein.

Where applicant acts as his or her own lexicographer to specifically define a term of a claim contrary to its ordinary meaning, the written description must clearly redefine the claim term and set forth the uncommon definition so as to put one reasonably skilled in the art on notice that the applicant intended to so redefine that claim term. Process Control Corp. v. HydReclaim Corp., 190 F.3d 1350, 1357, 52 USPQ2d 1029, 1033 (Fed. Cir. 1999). The term "signal sequence" in claims 2-5, is used by the claim to mean "a nucleic acid sequence that increases yield", while the accepted meaning is "a peptide present on proteins that are destined with to be secreted or the be membrane components. It is usually at the N terminus and normally absent from the mature protein. Normally refers to the sequence (ca 20 amino acids) that interact with signal recognition particle and directs the ribosome to the endoplasmic reticulum where co translational insertion takes place. "The term is indefinite because the specification does not clearly redefine the term and the term does not provide for the property of increasing yield.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC $ 102 103

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 6, 9-15, 17, 22 and 23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Dawson et al, WO 91/09125 published 27 June 1991.
